IT'S GREENER ON THIS SIDE OF LIFE

THE BREEZE IN THE FOREST SPREADS EVERGREEN BLISS

It is said that nature is not a place to visit. It is home. Standing protectively between Purva Atmosphere's majestic towers and the world outside is a beautiful forest. Surprised?

It's a unique Japanese tree plantation practice called The Miyawaki Method. With over 75 species of carefully curated trees which includes - aroma trees, medicinal trees, fruit and flower bearing trees, this is a botanical experience in itself. According to this method, plants grow 10 times faster and provide 30 times greener surface area. Being 100% organic, The Miyawaki forest brings serenity to life.

FAÇADE DESIGN
CONCEPT
BY GERMAN BASED ARCHITECT
HADI TEHERANI

The towers at Purva Atmosphere have a minimalist, rectangular form, further accentuated by their anthracite and pearl-grey colours, defining an understated, international, bold and timeless sophistication. Anthracite grey is often associated with a refined Scandinavian or Japanese aesthetic. This creates an ideal backdrop for the colourful parametric window shading profile, which provides a dynamic façade as well as a practical shading device.

The window shades combine to create a rhythmic undulating façade pattern, contrasting with the minimal rectangular form, and come alive with colour as one approaches the towers along its sides. The façade, in effect, is not restricted to just the head-on view. Its appearance changes dynamically as one walks around, bringing life and joie-de-vivre to the development.

The window shades in Towers 2 and 3 are painted with terracotta orange, inspired by India's rich, bright, earthy tones. The light blue colour in Tower 1 represents pure air, emphasising the interaction of the earth and the sky. This, combined with the lush greenery of the landscape, creates a truly inspiring atmosphere.
